

Developing 21st Century Skills

Exercise 3: Introducing Yourself

The facilitator will model what is expected before asking participants to do the same.

Now it is time for you to meet the others participating in the course. Hopefully, the colleagues you meet here will become valuable resources for you both during the course and beyond as you return to your classroom and begin applying your 21st century teaching and learning skills and approaches.

Step 1

What would you like to share about yourself? Would you like to tell the grade level or subject area that you teach? Would you like to tell where you teach? List the key points that you want to share on the lines that follow.

Step 2

Share your key points as directed. Listen while others share as well.