Create a Simple Website

Creating a Simple Website

As more and more people are using the Internet to get information, it has become very important for businesses to have their own Website. The Website not only gives an online presence to your business, but is also a continuous way of promoting your business, and a medium to advertise the product or service.

Think of any business Websites you have seen recently. You can search on the Internet and find one that you like. What kind of information is included in these Websites? A business Website typically contains information about the business, the product or service offered, the contact and location information. You can also include pages which add value to your Website, such as photographs of your product or service, promotions and press releases. There are many ways to create and publish Web Sites. In this activity, you will be using an online service called Google Sites* to create the Website.

Note: Prior to creating your Website you will need to plan and organize all the required information which includes:

- Decide how many pages and headings you want to include in your Website.
- Decide the information to include in each page.
- Decide the images to include in each page.
- Collect and store images and the information in a folder.
