Electronic Communication Sources for United Nations

E-mail Center from the Wall Street Journal

I chose e-mail from the Wall Street Journal because the Wall Street Journal is a highly respected Newspaper. I know that it is likely that they will have current articles on the United Nations. The information will most likely be current and accurate.

Question Point: Online Computer Library Center

I feel that Question Point would be a wonderful source for information. The information comes from the library association, so I know it will be accurate. It is also an excellent site for information because I can e-mail them any question that I need answered and they will reply within 24 hours. This site will help with some background information on the UN that I will need.
