

Designing Effective Projects: Recognition of Student Work Recognizing Student Work

Ways to Recognize Student Work

Discover ways to affirm and recognize student work at a classroom and school level.

Classroom Level	School Level
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Display student work in hallways of school</li> <li>▪ Display student work on bulletin boards of classroom and invite parents and other school personnel to come by and view the student work and offer positive feedback</li> <li>▪ Have an Open Day, inviting parents and other family members to recognize student work</li> <li>▪ Invite experts to view student performances, debates, or work products.</li> <li>▪ Have students share finished products with a same year/form-level class</li> <li>▪ Invite the principal, secretary, or other teachers in to view presentations and be part of the audience</li> <li>▪ Post student work on classroom Web sites and invite family, friends, and community members to see the work and send emails to students</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Hold Community Nights where family, friends, and community members are invited to watch presentations, view work products, and see performances</li> <li>▪ Hold Science Fairs, Art Showcases, Literature Nights, Math Nights, and History Fairs where all students and classes are represented and are able to share work products with the guests</li> <li>▪ Implement a buddy class system to pair older and younger classes together to share work with one another</li> <li>▪ Hold a monthly or quarterly school walk-through where classes are able to visit other classrooms and view the work products of the students. Provide comment sheets to give recognition.</li> <li>▪ Post student work on a school Web site and invite family, friends, and community members to see the work and send emails to classrooms</li> </ul>